Background

The 2018 and 2020 elections saw record increases in voter turnout among Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders (AAPIs).¹ In 2020, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders saw the highest increase in presidential turnout among any racial group (15-point increase, followed by 11 points for Asian Americans), and Asian Americans had the highest midterm turnout gain in 2018, a 14-point increase. In 2020, almost 60% (7.6 million)² of the Asian American citizen age voting population turned out. In battleground states such as Arizona, Georgia, Nevada, North Carolina and Pennsylvania, the number of Asian Americans who cast their ballot in 2020 exceeded the presidential margin of victory.

In the past two decades, Asian Americans have also become one of the fastest growing racial or ethnic groups in the United States.³ Between 2010 and 2020, the Asian population in the United States grew by 39%, and their population is projected to pass 35 million by 2060. Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders were the third-fastest growing group, growing by 30% from 2010 to 2020. Their population is projected to pass 2 million by 2030.

Key Findings

VOTER MOBILIZATION and VOTE CHOICE

- More than half of registered Asian Americans surveyed say they plan to vote, but less than half have been contacted by either of the major parties. 52% of Asian Americans said they had not been contacted at all by the Democratic Party in the past year, and 60% of Asian Americans said they had not been contacted at all by the Republican Party in the past year.
- About half (51%) of Asian American registered voters surveyed say they prefer to cast their ballots by mail or drop-off box, rather than in-person at a polling place.
- Asian American registered voters say they are more likely to vote for Democratic candidates than for Republican candidates in House and Senate elections. Indian Americans were the most likely to say they would vote for Democratic candidates. Vietnamese Americans were split (Senate) or leaned toward the Republican candidates (House).

PRESIDENTIAL FAVORABILITY

- 56% of Asian American respondents held a “very favorable” or “somewhat favorable” impression of Joe Biden compared to 29% who expressed either a “very favorable” or “somewhat favorable” impression of Donald Trump.

Key Findings

POLICY PRIORITIES

- Asian Americans respondents ranked health care (88%), jobs and the economy (86%), crime (85%), education (82%), gun control (73%) and the environment (75%) as “extremely important” or “very important” issues for deciding their votes in November. Voting rights and addressing racism were also important issues.

POLICY VIEWS

- 77% of those surveyed agreed we should have stricter gun laws in the United States, with 61% agreeing “strongly.”
- A strong majority (59%) “agree somewhat” or “agree strongly” that undocumented immigrants should have an opportunity to eventually become citizens in the United States.
- Asian American registered voters disagree with the practice of state/local governments or school boards banning books and lessons about racism in American history from public schools at double the rate they agree (54% to 28%).
- Nearly 75% of Asian American registered voters surveyed say they agree (“somewhat or strongly”) that public school curriculum should include lessons on Asian American history and the histories of other non-white groups.
- 69% of Asian American registered voters favor affirmative action programs designed to help Black people, women, and other minorities get better access to higher education

Key Findings

INFORMATION SOURCES

- Language access remains an important consideration for Asian Americans - 42% of Asian American registered voters that spoke a language other than English at home said they would use in-language voting assistance
- Television was the most popular news source for Asian American respondents (65%) and Facebook (32%) was nearly as popular a source as traditional print newspapers (36%). For some groups, especially Vietnamese Americans (51%), YouTube was regularly consulted as a news source.

HATE CRIMES

- 73% of Asian American registered voters worry about experiencing hate crimes, harassment and discrimination at least “sometimes” and 24% said they worry about it “very often.”
- Support for Democratic House candidates is higher among those concerned about hate crimes. Those who say they worry “very often” plan to support Democrats over Republican House candidates by a 3 to 1 margin.

Methodology

- The 2022 Asian American Voter Survey included 1,601 registered Asian American voters. The sample was obtained via up-to-date lists of registered voters as well as through a vendor panel screened for registered voters.
- The national sample includes Chinese, Filipino, Asian Indian, Korean, Japanese, Vietnamese registered voters.
- Interviews were conducted via cell phone (441) landline (190) and online (970). Surveys were offered in English, Chinese, Korean, and Vietnamese. The survey was fielded from April 19 to June 19, 2022.
- The majority of phone and online surveys were collected by ISA (Interviewing Services of America) with a small proportion (101) jointly fielded via ISA and APIAVote.

	Sample size	Margin of Error
Asian American (Total)	1601	+/- 2.5
Chinese American	330	+/- 5.5
Indian American	310	+/- 6
Filipino American	257	+/- 6
Korean American	267	+/- 6
Japanese American	224	+/- 7
Vietnamese American	213	+/- 7

Cross-tabulated data were weighted by key demographic variables, including national origin, nativity, age, education, sex, and geography (state)
